

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

CODE OF ETHICS.

ARTICLE I.

THE DUTIES OF THE PROFESSION TO THEIR PATIENTS.

SECTION 1. The dentist should fully recognize the obligations involved in the discharge of his duties towards his patients. As they are, in most cases, unable to correctly estimate the character of his operations, his own sense of right must guarantee faithfulness in their performance.

SECT. 2. The dentist should lend his influence to encourage a sound dental and medical education, and to uphold in the community correct views of the powers and the limitations of dental science and art. It is not to be expected that the patient will possess a very extended or accurate knowledge of professional matters. The dentist should make due allowance for this, patiently explaining many things which may seem quite clear to himself. He should encourage no false hopes by promising success, when, in the nature of the case, there is uncertainty.

ARTICLE II.

MAINTAINING PROFESSIONAL CHARACTER.

SECTION 1. In his relation with another dental practitioner and his patients, the dentist should be governed by strict rules of honor and courtesy. His conduct should be such as, if universally imitated, would insure the mutual confidence of all dental practitioners.

SECT. 2. The professional success of a practitioner depends upon qualities connected with his moral character, his scientific attainments, and also his industry and business talents. But the relation of practitioners of dentistry to patients is not like that of tradesmen to their customers. The kind of competition which might be considered honorable in business cannot exist between dentists without diminishing their usefulness, and lowering the standing of the dental profession.

SECT. 3. If a dentist treats a patient during the temporary absence or illness of the usual dentist, or in case of accident or other emergency, he should direct that the patient go to the former as soon as he is able to take charge of the case, and should then relinquish it to him.

SECT. 4. It is unprofessional to resort to public advertisements, cards, hand-bills, posters, or signs, calling attention to peculiar styles of work, lowness of prices, or special modes of operating, or to claim superiority over neighboring practitioners, to publish reports of cases or certificates in public prints, to go from house to house to solicit or perform operations, to circulate or recommend nostrums, or to perform any similar acts.

SECT. 5. Consultation should be encouraged in cases of unusual responsibility or doubt.

A consultation is called for the benefit of the patient, and to give him the advantage of collective skill. Should there be a difference of opinion, discussion should be temperate, and always confidential.

A consulting dentist should be careful to say or do nothing to impair the confidence of the patient or his family in the attending dentist.
